A SAGA OF SERVICE TO WOMENS' EDUCATION

At a time when education for women was thought of as unnecessary an inspired pioneer named Somasundara Sastriyar ventured to start a school exclusively for girls. In 1904, when he approached the government for permission for starting a school for girls, he was informed that a school exclusively for girls was not permitted under the rules and that if he started a school he should admit both boys and girls. Sastriyar being a retired civil servant finding his plea not accepted by the authorities defied and started the school without the needed government sanction. However within a few years the government sensing the changes in the attitude of the society accorded the needed permission for the school. The school was soon making a mark thanks to the dedication of the pioneer and his successors. Setting rigorous standards both in teaching and in imposing discipline the school emerged as a model. For more than a century the school was the main teaching institution of standard for girls in Kanchipuram.

With the passing of a century the management wanted to reach out to higher levels of teaching exclusively for girls and the result was starting of a college for women in Kanchipuram. The remarkable tradition that the school has developed over a hundred years has been inherited fully by the College. Located in the midst of a green garden in the vicinity of Kanchipuram, the College started attracting thousands of girls and is growing phenomenally having extended several courses including post graduate ones.

A senior Professor of English had taken over as the Principal and gave his best to build up the college. Ten pass-course branches were initially introduced and thereafter in a few years three post graduate courses followed. It has been a fortune that the College has been able to recruit well informed lecturers to fill the various departmental vacancies. The management takes new interest in providing the needed training for them to adapt themselves to the changing syllabus needs.

The College has a large well provided Computer Centre as most of the courses offered need Computer training. A highly qualified Librarian is efficiently taking care of the growing library. Two large well designed auditoriums have been provided to help students participate in lectures, discourses and other activities.

Our aim is to strive for giving holistic education. Today, employability has become a key factor in higher education. Communicative competence ensures easy employability. Therefore, we take all efforts to improve the communicative competence of students. If a student cooperates with our regimen we ensure that in three year's time she will have become a well rounded competent person, competent not only in communication but in other areas of human activity as well.

As the College is located in a place little away from the city, the management is running a large canteen to cater to the needs of students who are coming to the college from distant centers. The hygienically maintained canteen sells food items at near subsidized rates. A large number of buses are being run to enable the students coming from distant villages reach the college in time. Teachers are exposed to training by experts in each subject quite frequently. Teachers and students do undertake educative excursions to centers of great educative value.

The principal and the highly motivated teachers are taking great interest in improving the academic standard of the college.
